

Re: Bintan Island, a short hop from Singapore

Bintan, Indonesia is one of our favourite options for a weekend trip from Singapore! The idyllic island can be reached with just one-hour ferry ride from Singapore!

Think Sun, Sand, Sea, fabulous resorts, authentic cuisine and action-packed activities that will keep you occupied for a few days, all at very attractive prices.

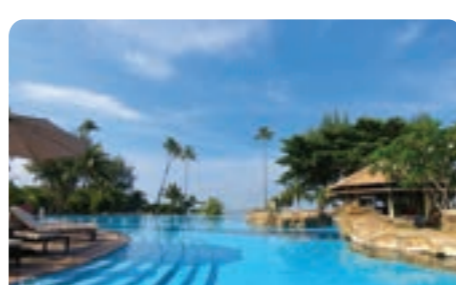

One of the things we love most about Bintan is its huge range of accommodations; there's everything from rustic beach bungalows to luxe pool villas. We have rounded up some of the best hotels and resorts to stay in while you're visiting Bintan Island (see below).

If you're keen to step outside of #resortlife and get a taste of Indonesia, there is much to be explored outside of the manicured property that is Bintan Resorts. As soon as you exit the border of the resort area, you will feel like you are actually in Indonesia with tiny warungs along the road, chickens and goats roaming freely, temples, a beautiful mosque, and lots of small farms.

Expect to do a lot of chilling out on the beach or at the pool, and take most of your meals within your hotel (there aren't too many standalone restaurants), but if you're willing to venture out of your resort and a little off the beaten track, you'll find plenty of local delights (and even a picturesque spot or two to snap a pic for the 'Gram).

Travelling here is easy too with few restrictions. Refer to this link for the latest guidance.
